This is an international bibliography of comic books, comic strips, animation, caricature, cartoons, bandes dessinées, and related topics. We have divided the bibliography into four sections, arranged alphabetically by author, for ease of use. We welcome any additions or comments.

The entries in this bibliography come from many sources, and from many different computer systems. Because of this, certain international characters (such as accented letters) do not display properly on many systems. We apologize for the inconvenience this might cause.

Some of the entries include URL links, which were valid when the entries were indexed. If the links are no longer functioning, some of them may be found using the Internet Archive's Wayback Machine at www.archive.org by entering the URL.

- II. D-K
- III. L-R
- IV. S-Z

As of our latest major update (November 2009), we have more than 29,700 entries in the bibliography.

NOTE: These files are quite large (about 1 MB in size for each section). Be warned if you have a slow connection. We are working on getting the bibliography broken up into smaller, more manageable chunks (see topical bibliographies below).

Click here to search the entire comics research bibliography!

NOTE! The search engine uses JavaScript and is larger than 4 megabytes. It will take a long time to load if you have a dial-up connection.

Click here for a list of topical bibliographies on a wide range of subjects. Note: these are not regularly updated; for complete information on topics, use the search form.

This bibliography was developed from articles in the authors' personal collections and from searching in sources such as the Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature and several newspaper archives (see below). Although some of the materials identified here are also included in John A. Lent's series of bibliographies on comics, cartoons, caricatures and animation, the authors did not consult Lent's books in preparing this bibliography. We do recommend those volumes to comics researchers and hope that our bibliography will supplement and augment Lent's work.

We'd like to thank the following people who have contributed to the bibliography:
